

International Law a body of rules established by custom or treaty. The Nations of the world recognizes the rules of International law as binding in their relations with one another. It is the Laws of Nations or the body of laws which is governing relations between various nations.